The 1961

MAGNET

presents a picture of a year in

LEOMINSTER HIGH SCHOOL

and its Spirit . . . Friendliness . . .

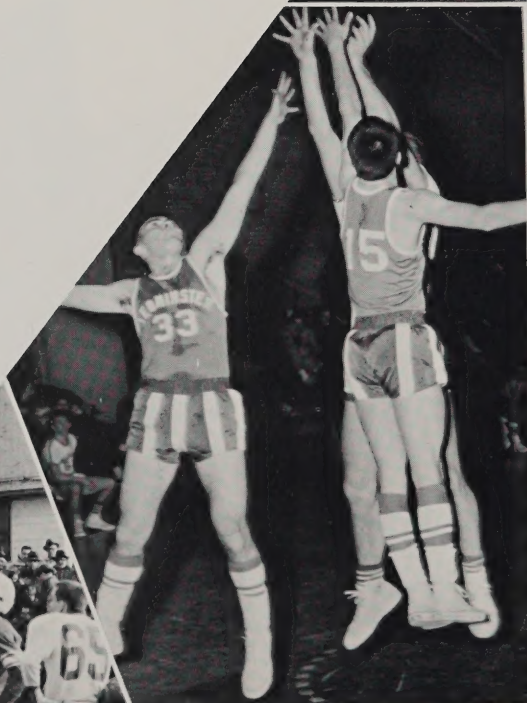

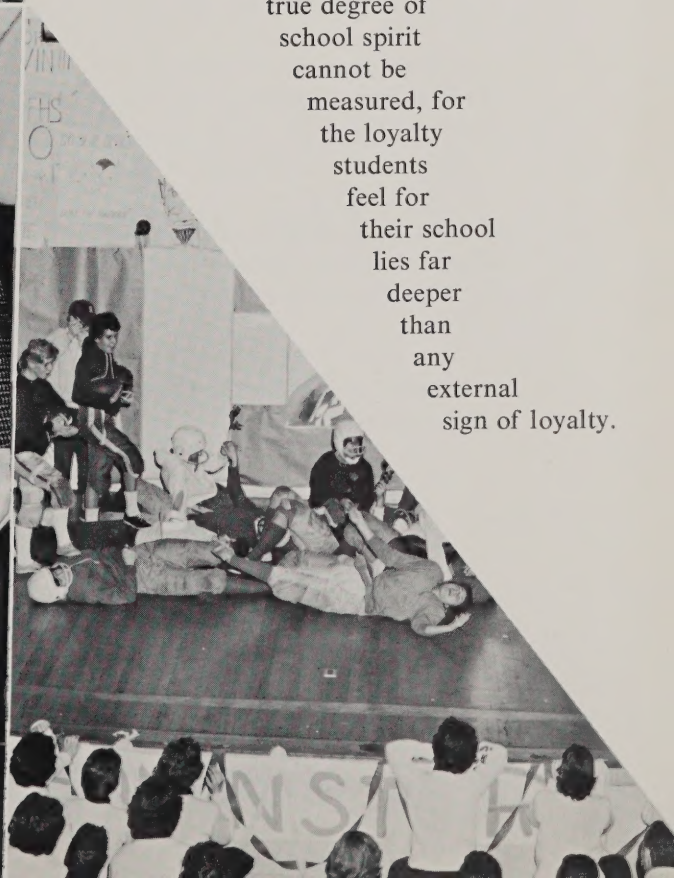

and Tradition

This is its Spirit . . .

This is its Friendliness . . .

Heads huddled together over homework, a joke shared with a friend, a warm and sincere handshake——
this is the friendliness of Leominster
High School.

It makes new friendships and strengthens old ones.

It gives directions to a lost sophomore and a push to a stalled car.

It overcomes the fears of new students about being accepted by the student body.

It enables our teachers to show particular interest in each student by giving freely of their time after school for individual help sessions.

By using it our administration, guidance department and faculty amicably, readily and competently handle any problems which arise.

Because of it ideas are exchanged, dreams discussed, laughter shared and helping hands extended.

Understanding smiles, helping hands and the countless, seemingly unimportant actions that leave a glow in a person's heart—all are part of the friendliness of Leominster High School.

Tradition

Our school tradition has been the force linking the past to the present and the present to the future. Each class has enriched this tradition by forging a strong tie to which succeeding classes can grasp and enrich.

This is the iron of Leominster tradition. Its substance can be found in the Thanksgiving Day crowds, cold but hopeful; the magic of Prom night; the excitement of curtain time at the Senior Play; the pride of Graduation.

Our strength has been fired, too, by the spirit of co-operation on the Smorgasbord Supper; the unforgettable moments at the G.A.A. Cabaret; the growing awareness of a new humility at the Senior Reception.

We, the graduating class of 1961, are proud that we have added one more link to the chain of Leominster High School Tradition.

ADMINISTRATION

Principal . . .

Theodore M. Kucharski
Principal

What shall we say in farewell to young people as we graduate them into the Space Age? Shall we urge you to bend every effort to be the first astronaut to set foot on the moon? Shall we try to inspire you to use your talents in inventing, perfecting, implementing interplanetary rockets and missiles and other such fireworks of outer space? Well, do these things if you want to and have the talent for it. We'll be proud of any pioneers among you who sail into orbit in the next twenty years.

But may we also say that we shall be equally proud to hear in the years to come of those of you who remain with your feet firmly planted on the soil of Earth, for this old planet, on which you have been nourished and educated, on which you have respected your parents and worshiped your God and found friends to enjoy life with—this old planet still has plenty of respectable chores for you to do right here at home. While the adventurous cope with the universe, it will be good to have some of you learning to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, shelter the shelterless, teach the ignorant, and raise children of your own so filled with the spirit of loving and serving God and their fellow men that this planet will become so peaceful and lovely a place that no one will want to leave it for the brightest star in the cosmos.

Autographs

It all began in September of 1958. A class of both frightened and assured sophomores made their first appearance at L.H.S. After a fall of hazing by the seniors, Paula Curtin brought the first honors to our class by winning first prize in the Better Speech Contest. We were very proud when several of our boys received letters for various sports. At the end of our sophomore year, we elected the following officers to lead our junior class: Peter Chester—President, William Dululio—Vice President, Donna Ramgren—Secretary, and Esta Schwartz—Treasurer. We also learned that Miss Mary Addante and Mr. Conrad Geller would be our faculty advisors.

After a well-deserved summer vacation, we returned to the “Hill.” Soon after our arrival Beverly Pelletier, Mary Dauphinais, Cindy Erb, Joanne Kennedy, and Sylvia Russo were chosen cheerleaders. Our junior girls brought more recognition to our class by winning the field hockey championship.

Our first real class project took place in the spring of 1960 when a smorgasbord supper was held at the Northwest School; it was a great financial and social success.

Following tradition we, as juniors, all worked hard organizing the Junior-Senior Prom, Aloha. The tropical decorations were quite unique—palm trees, lawn furniture, and brilliant flowers.

Once again, it was election time. After the votes were counted, the representatives for our senior year were William Dululio—President, Donna Ramgren—Vice President, Marlene Perla—Secretary, and Paul Caisse—Treasurer.

Some of our girls had the honor of serving as ushers and flower girls for the graduating seniors in June, 1960.

The year came to an end with an enjoyable outing at Mary Corby’s camp.

In the fall of 1960 we returned to L.H.S. for our senior year. For the second year the G.A.A. initiation party for sophomores was held at St. Jean’s Hall, where the main event was a ghost walk for new members. All agreed that it was an enjoyable evening. Our first major project as seniors, was a spaghetti supper, which was held at the Northwest School. The decorations added much to the Italian atmosphere of the supper. The patrons enjoyed the food, and the class of ’61 enjoyed the profits.

HISTORY

The next major school project was the Better Speech Contest at which Carol Celli brought more honor to our class by winning third prize.

The class of '61 again won the field hockey championship and the girls' varsity hockey team had an undefeated season.

During football season the team showed great spirit and determination in each game they played. The following senior boys were awarded sweaters and letters at a special assembly in January: Donald Kipp, Leo La France, John Boyle, Richard McHugh, George Fiffy, Jimmy Ashe, Curran Hart, Wayne Owen, and Carl Ciprotti.

On December 20, 1960, we opened our basketball season in Lunenburg with a strong victory and hopes for many more. Throughout the season the team showed their fighting spirit and made us very proud of them.

The main event of the month of February was the Winter Carnival Ball, Wonderland by Night. This was high-lighted by the grand march, led by the king, John Boyle, and the queen, Joyce Agnew, and their court.

When mid-years had been completed, the entire class concentrated their efforts on making a success of the Senior Play. After many weeks of planning and rehearsing the "big nights" arrived and the citizens of Leominster enjoyed a memorable performance of She Stoops to Conquer.

Our last high school prom, the Junior—Senior Prom, was a beautiful event. As we gazed around the dance floor, we noticed that the members of our class not only looked handsome and charming, but seemed older and more mature.

Then came the sentimental Senior Reception. As we stood in the receiving line, reminiscing about our unforgettable three years at L.H.S., we knew that we were leaving our school, our teachers, and most of all our friends.

The last memory shared by the class of '61 was Graduation. While receiving our diplomas, we couldn't help wondering what the future held in store for us.

Our Principal

CONGRATULATIONS:

You are about to face many new problems that you have never known before. You will face a new and changing world. You will face new methods in manufacturing technology.

I challenge you, as a graduate, to roll up your sleeves and face these problems squarely and justly. Our country needs good energetic young men who will perform an hour's work for an hour's pay.

Can I count on you as one who will accept this challenge? America looks to you for future leadership. God bless you in your chosen field.

Sincerely yours,

Emile S. Johnson

Auto Mechanics

The Automotive Mechanics course was initiated at Saxton Trade High School by Mr. Emile Johnson in 1958. This course has given many interested students an opportunity to learn about the automotive industry.

Our automotive facilities enable the students to perform the necessary shop work and gain valuable, practical experience.

The number of students in this course has been steadily increasing. Much of this growth can be credited to the department's two fine instructors, Mr. Gilbert and Mr. Hatch.

It is our hope that more students will participate in this excellent automotive mechanics course in future years.

Cabinet

In the Cabinet department Mr. Luman, the instructor, teaches the correct use of tools to first year students. During the sophomore year students become acquainted with those power tools which are most commonly used by professional cabinet makers.

Junior year activities are concerned with practical experience in building several types of cabinets.

Later, during their senior year, cabinets are built for Leominster public schools and occasionally for private concerns.

Carpentry

This year as in the past, the Carpentry department performed the task of building a new house.

At first the boys go through the shop to learn the fundamentals of the trade, as taught by Mr. Burton. This training continues for two years until they reach their junior year, when they are permitted to assist with work on the house. During their senior year they undertake the entire responsibility of constructing a house under the direction of Mr. Mooney, their instructor.

This house-building program was initiated in 1955. Thus far six citizens of Leominster are enjoying fine homes constructed for them by the carpentry students of Saxton Trade High School, and at present a seventh house is under construction.

Drafting

In the drafting course, boys learn the basic fundamentals of drafting as first year students. During their sophomore and senior years they are taught how to work out drawing problems. These problems include drawing isometric views and revolutions as well as problems in piping and welding.

As seniors they are assigned to the new drafting tables. There they gain experience in solving all types of engineering problems. The schedule for this last year includes the designing of punches, dies, cutting tools, precision tools and gauges.

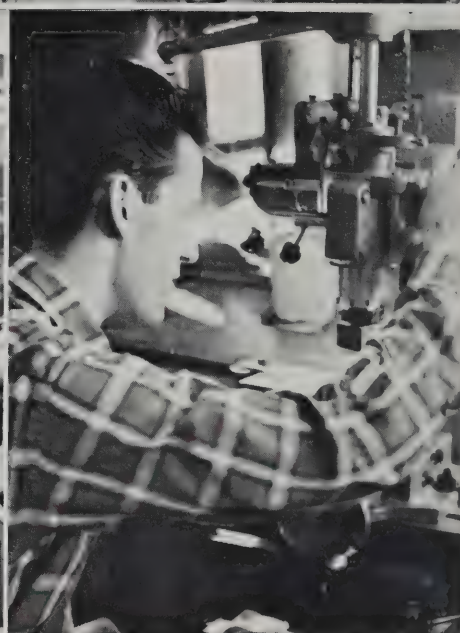

Machine Shop

In the Machine shop boys are taught by Mr. Fontaine for the first two years. He teaches them the proper use and maintenance of different machinery. The students learn to operate and make different pieces of equipment used in machinery work. They learn to read different tools such as micrometers, and verna height gauges.

As juniors, under the supervision of Mr. Membrino, they are taught to design and make parts of molds.

After graduation many boys become employed by local industry since there is a constant demand in the Leominster area for skilled machinists.

Candy Sale

The students of Saxton Trade conducted a candy sale in December, 1960.

The candy sale was initiated by the class of 1960, and was continued this year because of its financial success.

The profits realized from the candy sale will be used to defray the cost of senior class expenses, such as the class trip, the class banquet, caps and gowns and Magnet.

[illegible]

The class of 1961 is very grateful to its advisors, Miss Mary Addante and Mr. Conrad Geller, for their assistance and understanding during the past three years. The members of the Magnet staff would like to extend every best wish to the graduating class of 1961. It is our hope that this book will help to recall the many pleasant memories you experienced during your three years at Leominster High School.

OUR CLASS

With Bill at the head
And Donna at hand,
The Class of '61
Is the best in the land.
Marlene and Paul are pitching in too,
Improving our class by helping me and you.

We came up from junior high frustrated but set,
But after Junior Week we were initiated and wet!
For being a sophomore we had to pay
By carrying back some senior's dirty lunch tray.
"Will you marry me, honey," was a common phrase,
"Happy Birthday," "I love you," were parts of the craze.

As juniors our role of the underdog ended
We studied, stayed home and our marks were just splendid!
We booed cocky sophomores and yelled for neat tricks,
We helped all the seniors to their wagons fix.
Our Smorgasbord Supper was really the most
We juniors at L.H.S. could then really boast.

As seniors now our days are numbered
Through the halls of L.H.S. our voices have thundered.
Our supper was great and our play stupendous,
Our records and deeds will always defend us.
Classmates and friends, make final preparation
For soon it will be here, our Graduation.

Senior

The greatest example of combined class spirit, friendliness, and tradition appeared in the 58th senior class production, "She Stoops to Conquer." It was this extravaganza that caused most of the class of 1961 to voluntarily give their best effort to a class function.

Many months of planning and working went into the preparation of this theatrical project. In November the dates of the performances were chosen by faculty director, John Joyce; production manager, Peter Proietti; co-directors, Elaine Amorosi and Kathy Preziosi; and technical director, Richard Stacy. Then came the long process for the production staff of reading and selecting plays for the class to vote on. When the play was chosen, all interested seniors decided the way in which they wanted to contribute to the play.

After two nerve-wracking afternoons of tryouts, the production staff met at the home of Mr. Joyce to cast the actors in roles which would best benefit the play and to select the all important behind-the-scene people.

Play

During the remaining days of February and the entire month of March, the cast rehearsed at the high school auditorium. All those who took part in these nightly sessions can never forget the fun involved with the merry-making at the Three Pigeons Inn, Kate and Marlow's chair scene, or the pursuit of the bar-maid.

Soon show week arrived with all its hustle and hectic last minute arrangements. Dress rehearsals were held, scenery was at last put on stage, and tickets were nearly sold out. Everything was ready for opening night. Anyone who had anything to do with the success of the play experienced the satisfying and mixed feelings of joy and sadness that went along with the closing curtain of "She Stoops to Conquer."

In appreciation for his invaluable assistance, at the close of the second performance, the class of 1961 presented Mr. John Joyce with a plaque honoring his 25th anniversary as faculty director of the Leominster High School senior play.

Spring Social

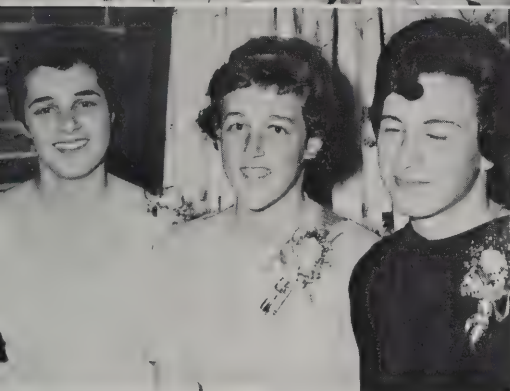

The Second Annual Spring Social was held by the Girls' Athletic Association on May 3, 1961. This gathering is limited to the girls and their mothers. It gives the mothers a chance to meet the girls and see for themselves how each girl respects the Association and everything it stands for. The girls are also proud to introduce their mothers to the other guests.

Entertainment was furnished by the members, and petit-fours, tea, and coffee were served to the guests.

The Spring Social is just another of the many wonderful activities the Girls' Athletic Association sponsored during the course of the school year.

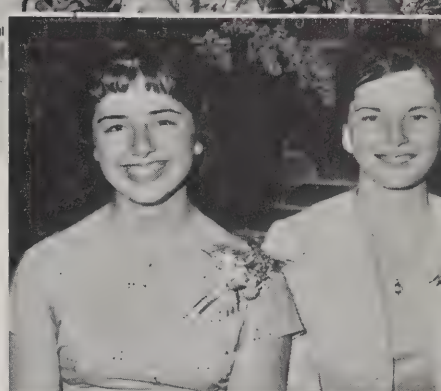

Annual Banquet

Throughout the entire year the members of G.A.A. work hard trying to improve their athletic abilities, learning how to work with others, and most of all, learning how to be "fair and square" during competition. The Association recognizes the efforts put in by each member and at the close of each year rewards the girls with a cherished banquet.

The banquet is the summary of the past year's hard work. For each and every member it puts a finishing touch on the year gone by.

The banquet, to a sophomore, is exciting and is a new experience. To a junior, it means the loss of senior pals. To a senior, the banquet marks the beginning of all new things to come. Through the three years, the senior G.A.A. girls learn and use many of the qualities needed for success in life. Those qualities are ever present for each and every girl in G.A.A. and she is encouraged to take them and use them wisely.

Reception

A feeling of sadness, a feeling of happiness, a feeling of reluctance—the class of '61 was experiencing one of the most difficult, yet most wonderful moments of its high school years—Senior Reception.

Warm handshakes, friendly greetings, sparkling smiles, a few tear-drops, and wishes of luck, happiness, and success were all part of this memorable evening.

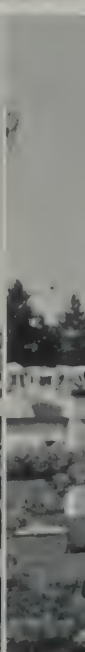

For most seniors this was not the end of three happy years at L.H.S. but the beginning of many sunny days ahead in which dreams will be fulfilled and memories restored.
